A Lesson in Civics

The 2016 elections are a thing of the past and we now know Donald Trump has—seemingly against the odds—been elected our new President. As is the case in the aftermath of most elections, the losing side is unhappy and in this case even more than usual, since Trump won the Electoral Vote but lost the popular vote. This has happened only a few times in the history of the United States and every time there are calls to do away with the Electoral College. But eliminating the Electoral College is not only unlikely to happen, it is against the intent of the framers of the Constitution when they set up the USA as a Republic (a form of government in which power resides in the hands of elected officials who represent the populace).

Why Would it be Difficult to Abolish the Electoral College?

Well, because the country's founders felt the concept of the Electoral College so important, they wrote it into the Constitution—in Article II, Section I, Clause II. So, to eliminate it or modify its concept would require supermajority vote of Congress (67 votes in the Senate and 290 votes in the House) plus ratification by three-quarters of the States. Not likely.

What's Wrong With a Simple Majority Election?

The Founding Fathers realized from a study of history and government that a true democracy is doomed to failure. With an election by popular vote, they reasoned, it's possible for a slim majority to tyrannize a bulk of the population. A time-honored simile compares a true democracy to two wolves and a sheep voting on what's for dinner. The existence of the Electoral College ensures that presidential candidates cannot concentrate their efforts on just a few states with the highest populations (California, Texas, New York, Florida, etc.) and ignore the majority of states. In practice, it makes small population states such as Vermont, Alaska, and the Dakotas just as important as the large metropolitan areas.

How Does it Work?

Since 1964 there have been 538 electoral votes up for grabs, representing all the votes in Congress plus three votes for the District of Columbia. Of those votes, 270 must be won in order for a candidate to be declared President. In this way, a candidate can acquire electoral votes from a large number of small population states and prevail over an opponent who gains the popular vote by winning a handful of large population states, making it improbable for California and New York, for example, to continuously dictate policy to, say, North and South Dakota. The number of electoral votes held by each state can and does vary slightly every ten years, based on census reports of each state's population, but the total must remain 538. That's one of the reasons why the census is important.

Must the Electoral College Cast its Votes for the Presidential Candidate?

No, there is no such requirement. Once the electors are in place, they may indeed vote for whomever they wish, and in fact this has happened with select individual electors several times in the past. It's known as a "faithless" vote. However, it is uncommon. But the probability, in the present situation, electors might vote for Clinton rather than Trump is exceedingly unlikely. When a state is won in an election it nominates either Democrat or Republican electors. Taking Arizona, with 11 votes, as an example, it nominated 11 Republican electors, so even if some or all of them decided to not vote for Trump, they would vote for some other Republican, not a Democrat.

Thanks to Kenny Reds (SASS #83266) for supplying the inspiration for this editorial.

2016 OVERALL WORLD CHAMPIONS OF COWBOY ACTION SHOOTING™ SPOTLIGHT

2016 OVERALL LADIES WORLD CHAMPION

Jessica Kirkham, 18, aka SASS Kicker, SASS #91899

1. Tell us a little about you (in your own words) - Where were you born, where did you grow up, what are your hobbies and interests? - I was born in Flagstaff, AZ and raised in Sedona, AZ my entire life. I have always loved to play sports. In grade school, I ran cross-country, and played basketball and soccer. In high school, I played varsity basketball my freshman and sophomore year, and when I changed schools, I ran cross-country senior year. My favorite thing to do in my free time is to hike and run half marathons. I have always loved the outdoors.

2. How long have you been shooting, and how did you get started? - I started shooting at age 13, in the beginning of my 8th grade year. I've been shooting for 5 years and became interested in shooting after my brother and father competed at the 2011 END of TRAIL World Championship. I remember being inspired while watching the Top 16 Shoot-off where Holy Terror and Badlands Bud went head-to-head. I asked my mother if I could join SASS, and I left as a spectator with my new alias... SASS Kicker. Initially, I was coached by Pecos Clyde, who gave me a great foundation in my shooting ability.

3. Tell us about your home club. - My home club is Arizona Yavapai Rangers located between Cottonwood and Sedona. Recently my uncle, aka Tom Elder and cousin, aka Tom Younger became President and Vice President of the club. It is a small club, which hosts an annual match every September. Every month we have a small match for the Verde Valley shooters. I always enjoy these shoots and have a blast when I go.

4. Tell us a little about your practice and training regimen. - For the first three years, my practices were a combination of dry firing and live practice. My coach, Pecos Clyde, always gave me homework. Practices instructed by Pecos were generally once or twice a month, three to four hours long, and we usually shot around 1,000 rounds. I dry fired in our basement five days a week and usually for an hour. This continued for about 2-1/2 years. As I got older and started to attend high school and college, my schedule became very busy with the addition of sports and harder academics. Due to these circumstances, I am unable to practice as often, however I always train rigorously before big matches. This year I started attending the University of Arizona, so I am only able to practice once a month when I go home to visit my family.

5. Tell us about your preferred match competition firearms, including revolver(s), rifle, and shotgun, and include a brief description of any modifications. - My revolvers are stainless Ruger .357 Vaqueros with 4-5/8 inch barrels. Colt Faro installed Shotgun Boogie short-stroke kits in them. My main match .357 model 73 is short stroked by Rich Stephenson of Palo Verde Gunworks. My 12-gauge SKB 100 has action work done by Johnny Meadows of Camp Verde Gunworks. Colt Faro built my holsters and the shotgun belt is made by the WM Brown Holster Company.

6. Tell us about your preferred match ammunition. - My father reloads our pistol and rifle ammo on a Dillon 650 press. For big matches we only shoot new Starline brass with 105-grain bullets. I use the same load in both rifle and pistol in .38 special. All ammo is case gauged and checked for powder. We purchase Remington Premier STS 12 gauge 1 oz. no. 8 shot at 1185 fps for all big matches or Winchester low-recoil, low-noise shotgun rounds.

7. Tell us about any other associations/clubs you belong to. - Currently I am a member of the National Rifle Association and the Arizona Elks Society. I am very involved in clubs on the UofA campus including Flying Samaritans, which travel to Mexico to do volunteer healthcare in Mexico. Additionally, I have represented my past high school at multiple leadership conferences including the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Conference, Girls State, and The National Student Leadership Conference for Medicine and Health Care.

8. Tell us what you love about SASS and the Sport of Cowboy Action Shooting™. - I love the SASS community, which has helped me in so many areas of my life. SASS is composed of diverse people from all over the world who have treated me with utmost respect and have guided me during my adolescence. I have enjoyed meeting and competing with its members who have inspired me to believe in my dreams and believe in myself. SASS has helped guide me as an athlete, a competitor, and it has allowed me to spend valuable time with my family. My father, brother, uncle and cousin attend shoots together, while my mother and grandparents support me at every big match. I have grown so close to my family and the many SASS members that I also consider family.

9. Tell us about any aspirations or plans you have to be able to “give back” to the sport. - Currently, I demonstrate gun safety and Cowboy Action Shooting™ at the AZ Game and Fish Expo. I also educate spectators about shooting at the Sedona Day of the Cowboy where I promote SASS and firearm responsibility. I am also involved in teaching for the Doily Gang, which provides lessons to women all over the world. All the proceeds go toward the SASS Scholarship Fund. As a SASS scholarship recipient, I couldn't be more appreciative of the help and support I'm receiving to attend the University of Arizona, so I will do my absolute best to continue to give my time and resources back to SASS. I have also written several articles for The Cowboy Chronicle. Additionally, I am hoping to become an EMT while in college. I would love to take this skill and offer it at SASS matches.

10. You are a past SASS Scholarship recipient. Do you plan on applying in the future? - I am one of the 2016 SASS Scholarship Recipients. This award has helped me cover the costs of tuition and housing, which has been extremely helpful in my studies. The Pre-Medicine Program is very rigorous and requires many hours of studying outside of class. Rather than focusing on getting a job, I am able to place more effort into my studies. I will certainly be applying for the upcoming year. I am so thankful for this scholarship and all the possibilities it has given me. Thank you for allowing me to pursue my dreams of becoming a doctor.

11. Please list all shooting accomplishments/titles throughout your shooting career thus far.

- Arizona State Championship: Overall Lady's Champion at Bordertown (2012, 2013, 2014, 2016)

- National Championship: Buckarette National Champion (2012), Overall Women's at Winter Range (2014, 2015, 2016) & Top 16 Ladies Champion

- World Championship: Junior Girls World Champion (2012, 2013, 2014) Cowgirl at EOT (2015, 2016), Overall Women's Champion at EOT (2014, 2015, 2016)

12. If you could write a personal message to someone who was interested in Cowboy Action Shooting™, how would you encourage them to participate? What has the sport taught you or exposed you to that has set you on a given path?

- I would encourage anyone to join SASS if they are looking for lifelong friends and quality time with loved ones. SASS is so extensive and diverse; there is something in it for everyone. Whether you are a gun enthusiast, love the Old West, love shooting, enjoy being competitive, enjoy not being competitive, or anywhere in between, you will fall in love with SASS. Admittedly, before I joined SASS I didn't enjoy shooting and I wasn't interested in the Old West. Once I joined, I fell in love with the community, the shooting, and the culture. SASS has taught me an appreciation and respect for people and the firearms they bear. It has taught me commitment, character, love, respect, and most importantly trust. During my first three years, I learned the value of practice and I grew as a shooter and as a person. I made sacrifices and those sacrifices have allowed self-discovery and self-discipline. All choices in life provide costs and benefits. SASS is an organization from which we can all benefit!

2016 OVERALL MENS WORLD CHAMPION

Clayton Wisdom, 16, aka
Missouri Lefty, SASS #91721

1. Tell us a little about you (in your own words) - Where were you born, where did you grow up, what are your hobbies and interests? - I was born in St. Louis, Missouri and grew up in Cedar Hill, Missouri. Some of my hobbies other than shooting are playing sports. I go to Northwest High School and the sports I play there are Soccer and Basketball. Other than that, my other hobbies are fishing and deer hunting.

2. How long have you been shooting, and how did you get started? - I have been shooting for five years, one of our family friends, who is a shooter named Frisco Red, brought me and my Dad to the gun range one day and let me shoot his cowboy guns and it has kept going from there.

3. Tell us about your home club. - My home club is in Sparta, Illinois with the Kaskaskia Cowboys. It is an amazing place with everything you need for shooting and it is run by great people that care about Cowboy Action Shooting™ and who put on great matches.

4. Tell us a little about your practice and training regimen. - For practice I like to do both dry and live fire. For dry fire I will use all my guns at a time, simulating a stage while aiming at pieces of tape I have on the basement wall. When I first started shooting and was not as busy with high school I would practice daily for hours at a time. Now I do not get to do a lot of dry fire at home. For live fire practice I shoot little targets at longer distances than a normal match would have to make a match seem easier while shooting.

5. Tell us about your preferred match competition firearms, including revolver(s), rifle, and shotgun- and include a brief description of any modifications. - My preferred guns are Ruger New Vaqueros with 4-3/8 inch barrels, chambered in .357 and done by Jimmy Spurs. My rifle is a Uberti straight stock with a 18-inch barrel also done by Jimmy Spurs. My shotgun is a SKB 100 with inertia triggers done by Persimmon Dan.

6. Tell us about your preferred match ammunition. - I shoot .38 specials with a 105-grain bullet made by Lead Ringer with three grains of Titegroup powder.

7. Tell us about any other associations/clubs you belong to. - I belong to the NRA.

8. Tell us what you love about SASS and the Sport of Cowboy Action Shooting™. - What I love most about SASS is the people, because it doesn't matter if you are the fastest or slowest shooter on the range, everybody will treat you the same. I also like the friendly competition in Cowboy Action Shooting™. Most people that are your competition are also friends, which makes shooting a lot of fun.

9. Tell us about any aspirations or plans you have to be able to “give back” to the sport. - I would like to conduct some shooting classes or do a clinic for shooters who want to get better. Not just teach speed though, I would also teach about safety and mental management during a match that will hopefully improve every shooter.

10. Are you a past SASS Scholarship recipient? Do you plan on applying in the future? - Yes I plan on applying.

11. Please list all shooting accomplishments/titles throughout your shooting career thus far.
 - State Championships: Overall Missouri State Champion 2014 and 2016, Overall Ohio State Champion 2016, Overall Mississippi and Kansas State Champion 2013

- Regional Championships: 2013 Midwest

Regional Champion and 2013 Overall Midwest Regional Champion

- Divisional Championships: None

- National Championships: None

- World Championships: 2016 Overall World Champion and 2013 Buckaroo World Champion, 2016 Young gun World Champion

12. If you could write a personal message to someone who was interested in Cowboy Action Shooting™, how would you encourage them to participate? What has the sport taught you or exposed you to that has set you on a given path?

- If I were to encourage someone to join Cowboy Action Shooting™ I would have multiple viewpoints that would give them a reason to join. First would be the competitiveness of SASS. If anybody likes to compete, SASS is perfect because you can compete with people from every corner of the world not just certain areas. Also, the learning experiences from Cowboy Action Shooting™ help in all places of life, especially if you are a kid. Learning how to deal with and perform under pressure has helped me as person with school and sports. It also teaches the correct way to act. With good examples from other people, I have learned how to handle myself when things go wrong and how to act properly even if things don't go as you wanted, which I think is the most important thing a person can learn, because no matter how bad things are now I don't let it bother me and I move on looking forward to positive outcomes.

Mernickle Holsters

Helping to create "World Champions" since 1975.

When it comes to "High Performance" Bob Mernickle "world champion Speed shooter and multi speed record holder" knows how to get to the gun fast! "He then says you have to get it back in equally as fast!" Welcome to the NEW "HP series" of Cowboy Action Shooting Holsters.

High Performance
HP1 REF1

The NEW HP1REF1 comes with a lot of new design ideas. Here are just some of them.

- We have dropped the holster down 1 1/2" lower than anything we have done before making for an easier reach for the gun.
- We have cut the front down to allow a full thumb landing on the upper frame for those who do a gun transfer.
- For gun transfer we now do a taper below the trigger guard that tapers to the point where the guard meets the frame allowing the center finger to reach under the guard for a one hand draw keeping the grip frame completely free of the hand. This makes doing a gun transfer easier than ever thought possible. The side has been dropped and then flared out for the easiest re-holster ever!
- The new "WR"™ Wrist Relief! This is designed into the angle of the holster so when you reach for a gun you will not have to flex your wrist back to grab the gun yet you will be able to bring the gun straight up for an extremely fast draw with the quickest accessibility to the front site ever!
- The newly designed "Speed Load"™ shell holder no longer needs a stopper plate under the shells and can be staged at any height you the shooter would like to see them at. Also you no longer have to pull the shell straight up. You are free to choose the angle of grab which suits your shooting style the most.
- Then to finish all this off we have had a new dye lot created called "Gunfighter Brown"™.

Now you can shoot fast, be accurate and look good at the same time. It doesn't get any better than that!

Tales of A Victorian Gown

By Kathouse Kelli, SASS #72384
Pictures by Kathouse Kelli

To some cowgirls there is the desire to have the most elegant of gowns for banquet and award nights. Whilst not all like to participate in the Best Dressed Costumes there are those of us who do and we enjoy it very much.

Yes, from the basic and modest, Victorian and period pleasing, it all starts from the “unmentionables” (your Victorian underwear), petticoats, bustle should it be required, and corset to form your basic structure for wearing a gown just right.

For Texas Flower, it all started at Convention 2014, where she saw Peaches O’Day in a gorgeous Natural Form era, burgundy and gold gown during Miss Tabitha’s “How To Dress Like A Lady” seminar. We both gasped at the beauty of this gown that had been remade using the original gold fabric and lacework from the original 1800’s gown she had acquired. (Photo 1.)

Skip forward to April 2015 at Comancheria Days and I discussed the making of this gorgeous gown for Texas Flower but my requirement was I be able to use the 1886 McDowell

Diary of Desire (Tales of a Victorian Gown) . . .

Garment Drafting Machine I had won at the very same Convention during the Victorian Tea. (Graciously donated by Garnet Rose and Calico, again I thank you!) With notebook in hand I commenced the reading of the Drafting Machine Book (original instruction book and measurement book with the seamstress' delicate script were also in the box but I digress!) taking some 24 measurements. I should point out the book states, "one should take correct measure to ensure a lady does not have to endure trials of said gown and should expect the finished product to fit correctly." Meaning measure, get it right, don't inconvenience the lady with extra fittings. (Photo 2.)

Texas Flower decided she would like the gown in blue. After some research I found pictures of the original gown (the same one purchased by Peaches) online and I set to trying to find just the right shade and texture that was needed (Photo 3). For the lace I figured I would never find anything so beautiful to match this gown and would seek out my Mum's help back in Australia and check out her source of patterns, making the lace myself on my embroidery machine. This in turn would keep the gown similar but giving its intended wearer, indeed, something original.

March 2016 back in Australia, after few months lead I eventually found some gorgeous silk faille for Flower's dress. After sending samples back to Texas and subsequent emails, we finally decided on the color. (This was all happening, might I add, during Jackaroo's heart issues/surgery.) Three pages of notes later, working out depth, widths of pleats, where to join, how much fabric, etc., I was finally ready to commence.

The skirt was finally underway, cutting done, flat lined, stitched together, hand stitched hem facing, different color fabrics joined, ready for pleating (19 panels in all) back sections done. Alterations were made after closer inspection of the original photos. I found an underpinning of gathering and further pleating, so it had to be added. Who would know you say? Me! My eyes have now poured over these pictures and cannot unsee what they have seen. First week of April I was truly excited to see the skirt complete. It was my first attempt at origami pleats. It brought tears to Texas Flower's eyes when I emailed a picture to her. (Photo 4.)

At this point, Peaches O'Day had posted a couple of pictures of her dress on Facebook and a close up of the lace work. It took my breath away, what was I going to do now? The "lace" I thought Flower and I had looked at was totally beaded. Oh my goodness! Sorry Flower, yours won't be like this but thankfully my willing customer was happy with our previous discussions of embroidered lace with a hint of beading in the smaller flowers.

Because of Jackaroo's and my now delayed return to the US, I needed the drafting machine badly and thankfully Virgil Earp and Alvira Sullivan Earp were heading over for Land Run. They would be staying at our place and would bring it back to Australia for me. Phew! With it safely in my hands it was now time to master, and I do say that somewhat loosely, its use and understand the instructions.

Each piece was now to be set with Texas Flower's measurements. Like my Pa always used to say, "measure twice, cut once." Had no choice but to follow THAT rule with Flower so far away from me and time now being of the essence. I will note here the book also reads, "...it so simplifies the work that a fifteen-year-old child can easily learn to fit garments scientifically." Talk about putting the pressure on! (Photo 5.)

May 9 and finally the lining was cut for the torso section of the bodice. Now stitched together, it appeared my "inner 15-year-old child" managed to work it out as per the instructions. One instruction was not adhered to but thankfully was able to be corrected at the lining stage. I felt, in my somewhat-older-than-15 years, that an odd seven inches to the front skirt seemed a little ridiculous when the rest of the sections from the waist were only five inches. I was proven wrong, the front section, now on the mannequin, was some two inches shorter and required some rework.

Now the sleeves. My original thought was to skip the process in the book and use a suitable sleeve pattern from Truly Victorian, but my conscience got the better of me. How could I possibly hand over a garment only half made with the drafting machine? Out came the square rule and I proceeded to draw up a sleeve pattern from scratch. After checking everything on the mannequin again with tape measure and book, it was time to unpick each piece and use it as the pattern for the fashion fabric and start the customization. (Photo 6.)

With the ruched section in the front

Sleeves still needed but wanted to make sure they are triple/quadruple checked and would only be put on after I got to see Flower the Tuesday before END of TRAIL. (Photo 8)

Ninety-odd hours and 1216 beads later, across two countries, I finally finished the gown, culminating in the most exquisite piece I have yet produced

(Photo 9). Despite my misgivings, I now believe every written word in that drafting machine book as it fit Flower like a glove. Final beading and hand stitching was done the Friday before the big reveal and to all our delight, Texas Flower won First Place, Best Dressed Lady! (Photo 10.)

Under the evening lights in the Belle Union Saloon, those little Czech glass beadlettes shone bright like stars and the smile on Texas Flower's face! True satisfaction for a yesteryear seamstress.

I decided on a side front hook closure. Two tab closures across the front and its really starting to look the part. Create a collar that looks similar, line with gold, attach. Now it was time to venture back to Oklahoma and my embroidery machine (Photo 7). I'm extremely grateful for good friends and borrowed machines during that time!

Mid-June and close to leaving for END of TRAIL 2016, I'm cutting it fine but some things take careful consideration, all in the quest of getting it right. By now, all the hand cutting of the embroidery has been completed, the lace washed, and beading begun. It's looking sensational!

Third Place Shooting – Men

Gus Buck Silver dressed as an 1882 lawman with a gambling past. His outfit has silver dollars on his holsters, belt, and buckle.

Gus Buck Silver

In the Printed October issue of The Cowboy Chronicle, we correctly identified Gus Buck Silver (SASS #91335) as third place winner of the Men's Shooting Costume competition, but we unfortunately ran the wrong picture above his name. A correction was run in the subsequent issue, but then we received this letter from Buck:

Thanks for publishing a correction in November, although it won't quite be the same as that will be an electronic issue and separate from the EOT hard copy magazine edition. It would have been nice to have a souvenir that I could keep and hold in my hand, commemorating participating in and placing at a World Championship event, that I could show to my non-CAS friends, family, and co-workers. I'm a middle-of-the-pack shooter and missed a clean match by one shot, so the costume contest placement was my only saving grace. This was my first and probably my last EOT, as driving more than 2000 miles RT and spending $1,000-plus (gas, lodging, expenses, etc.) is more than I'm willing to do again as a non-competitive shooter. Fortunately, the SASS Western Regional and Divisional Championships are still within my range.

So we've decided to run Buck's photo and caption again in this hard copy issue of the Cowboy Chronicle. It's not quite the same as being in the actual END of TRAIL issue, but hopefully it will make adequate amends.

Appalachian Showdown is the longest-running multiple-day shoot on the east coast. For the past 25 years the weather has played a significant part in how well we've shot and how much fun we remember having. The fourth weekend in September in the mountains of West Virginia has brought torrential rain, cold, wind, heat, and even a hurricane aftermath (with electricity out and trees down in the road) but even though a recent storm felled an immense tree, completely destroying our jail and new loading/unloading tables, this year nature provided an autumn backdrop for our Silver Jubilee that was simply glorious — with sunshine and moderate temperatures — never a bet-

Many of this year's attendees have been coming to Appalachian Showdown for more than 20 years. Buzzerd Breath (SASS #1926), has been to all 25 of them.

MAKING A COWBOY LEGACY

In February 1993, Three Barb Benson, while in the Nashville V.A. Hospital, wrote about what it was like to get this endeavor started and about his dream of having a multiple-day shoot near his home in West Virginia. Here are his words:

I am awed by everything that has been accomplished since I first introduced Cowboy Action Shooting™ to the eastern part of West Virginia. I held the first-ever Cowboy Action Shooting™ match about September 1989 after having attended END of TRAIL that spring. At that time, probably no one but me owned a single action revolver and nobody but me owned a lever action in pistol caliber. We used any revolver, 30-30s, and any shotgun except for a semi auto. At that first match there were three shooters, Sam Swaim, Todd Buzzerd, and me. Even at that time I had an ultimate goal. It was to conduct a major two-day shoot.

At our third event we formed a club to further advance our goals and to obtain liability insurance. During the next three years we progressed from having three matches a year to having monthly shoots. We moved from using all balloons to having all steel targets. Our collection of props grew and grew until storage became a problem. Then we made the decision to conduct the major match we named "Appalachian Showdown."

In preparation for this we expanded our shooting range by bulldozing out two more lanes. We built more props and more targets. It took every member to serve as marshals, but we pulled it off in grand style. We impressed everybody who attended and put several larger clubs to shame that a club with 10 members (active) could put on such a grand event... Partners, that is, really doing something.

Founders Three

But this goal could never have been reached had it not been for the help of several people, two of whom are non-shooters. Back in our early days, when we used balloons by the gross, Lady Benson's son, Tommy Clevenger, and my nephew, Todd Hamrick, ran balloons on some days when the temperature and humidity were almost unbearable. Without them we would have died in our infancy. Todd Buzzerd and his dad blew all those balloons up. I designed all our stages back then and built all the props. Those people who went to extreme lengths to help us out, I have appointed CASS Territorial Rangers.

It has been my profound pleasure and my honor to have been your [club] president and to have guided you during this start and growth. Together we have accomplished even more that I had envisioned. We have achieved the goals we set. I consider the establishment of Cowboy Action Shooting™ in this area one of my greatest accomplishments. For this I sincerely thank you... I am convinced this is a growing sport and it is my strongest desire to see CASS grow with it.

God bless,
Three Barb Benson

The Highest Standards

Made along the lines of the classic peacemaker-style revolver, like those used by the professional shootists of the Old West, Cimarron's Evil Roy Competition SA has features favored by renown SASS World Champion and SASS National Champion shooter Gene "Evil Roy" Pearcey. What sets this sixgun apart from other single actions are the wide square-notch rear sight and wide constant width front sight, along with slim checkered grips for a better and firmer hand fit, and an action tuned in the U.S. by Cimarron's skilled gunsmiths. This fine tuning incorporates Cimarron's made in USA competition hammer and trigger/bolt springs that are lighter, smoother and permit a crisp, no-creep trigger pull, and improved internal parts to enhance reliability. Each Evil Roy six-shooter wears his SASS signature, roll engraved on the barrel.

THE Legend of Salmonella Gulch

By Grey Fox, SASS #223 and Miss Mary Spencer, SASS #55147

Grey Fox, SASS #223 and Miss Mary Spencer, SASS #55147

Cat herders at Salmonella Gulch. Long ago and not so far away, on a dusty summer day, a band of cat herders rode into a ramshackle collection of clapboard buildings near the E&N railway line. Who were the cat herders you might ask? Well they were the roughest, toughest collection of cowboys that ever rode the west.

As cat herder Grey Fox stepped down from his horse, looking at what passed for a no name town he said, "lets have lunch then rob the bank for dessert!" When Patrick Frenchie Licciardi dismounted from his horse, he stepped into a big cow flop and looking disgustedly at his boot yelled, "lunch, hell, a guy could get Salmonella in this gulch!" And you know what, the name stuck. Now things were kind of depressed in Salmonella Gulch. The gold rushes at Leechtown and Goldstream had petered out and there was no gold in the bank to rob. So Grey Fox, being an enterprising sort of fellow began to think of ways to rejuvenate the economy—so he could rob the bank!

Meanwhile the other cat herders like Many Coups, John Sweet, and Grizzly, led by the not so reverend Al Page were shooting discarded whiskey bottles off fence posts as an appetizer before lunch. That's when Grey Fox yelled through a haze of black powder smoke, "I've got it!" "What Salmonella?" Frenchie inquired with a note of concern and Grey Fox said, "no, I've got an idea and the other cat herders relaxed because they knew ideas were not contagious among their group." Grey Fox proceeded to explain his idea for rejuvenating the economy of Salmonella Gulch.

"We'll hold a shooting contest with prizes and people will come from all over and spend money and fill up the bank!" And sure enough, that is exactly what happened. Now the next problem was what to call the event and the greatest thinkers in the group began pondering the question, while those of lesser attention spans began amusing themselves flipping quarters, heads or tails. Now it just so happened one of the cat herders, Wild Horse Jack, was cheating with a double-headed quarter, and when he was found out, his partner, pulling his gun said, “we don’t want no double-head quarters around here.” Grey Fox, disturbed out of his senatorial slumber and only hearing part of what was said, yelled, “By Jove, that’s it, we will call the contest Headquarters,” and the name stuck to this very day and it became an annual event. Soon the town’s economy was rejuvenated; the cat herders settled down and eventually owned the saloon and the bank so there was no need to rob it. And so it came to pass that every year near the end of August they would load up their guns and shoot stuff in an annual event called Headquarters at Salmonella Gulch.

The foregoing is a product of the over-stimulated imagination of Wild Horse Jack (SASS #64334). The reality is, Victoria, British Columbia was the Headquarters for the (Continued on page 30) three major ranches in British Columbia in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The event was named to commemorate that fact of Canadian cowboy history. Headquarters began in 1992. The founders, Grey Fox, Al Page, Greg Grizzly Gilbert, and John Howard, established the oldest Canadian SASS® affiliated annual match. Headquarters is hosted by the Victoria Frontier Shootists of the Victoria Fish & Game Association.

Match Director Teacher C (SASS #72703) and his efficient team, Chief Range Officer Haweater Hal (SASS #55287), Victoria Diamond (SASS #60952), Black Ashley (SASS #89886), Lanark Rose(SASS #92898), Neut Reno (SASS #51654), Montana May (SASS #95820), and Master of Ceremonies Wild Horse Jack fielded a memorable event drawing shootists from all regions of British Columbia and eastern Canada, as well as U.S. competitors from Washington, Oregon, and as far away as Texas.

The contest was exciting with rapid-fire stages testing the skill and daring of the finest pistoleros. A performance of note was third overall winner Whistlin' Will (SASS #88382), at age 15 shooting some stages in the 19-second bracket. A highlight of the event is the long range mid range rifle match and the competition for the German Scheutzen target. Wild Horse Jack, as Master of Ceremonies, provided a most humorous vision of history and winning or losing at the Awards Dinner.

Haweater Hal and Victoria Diamond were bestowed Regulator Status for their contribution and dedication to enhance and promote the Single Action Shooting Society and Cowboy Action Shooting™ competitions.

Grey Fox and Miss Mary Spencer were cited for their establishing Cowboy Action Shooting™ in Western

❁ CLEAN UP THE TOWN ❁

The Twenty-Fourth Annual Australian NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

August 25-28, 2016

By H. L. Hunley, SASS #94810

Territorial Governor Virgil Earp led opening ceremony and was pleased Frontier Shooting Club was able to improve the range and act as host.

Australia (SASA), we were off and running.

Our Club Captain, a Wrangler shooter and winter Frontier Cartridge shooter, Bear Paw, took the reins. His vision was a story with cartoon cowboys. We needed solid, fun stages, lots of support materials, and logistics to have a four-day party. He made it happen. The FSC committee worked as a team and

Shooting Stage 1 at the Sheriff's Office.

The new façade allows shooting from the door and window, as well as moving into the building and shooting from a table, or through the hole in the "brick wall" (Styrofoam) of the cell.

CLEAN UP THE TOWN The "Nationals" aren't usually held in the tucked-away state of South Australia, but in March circumstances presented a chance. (More of a challenge, really.) The Frontier Shooting Club (FSC) was the natural host, as we had nine façades and passable elbow room on our range at the state shooting park in the town of Virginia. No electricity or water, but those were minor problems. A big event like this could mean 125-150 shooters. We figured a lot of folks wouldn't make the big trip from other states, so we planned on 100 shooters. Could the FSC, with the help of other clubs, pull this off?

We needed more façades, range dividing walls, a place to host dinners, and enough other "must-be-dones" to rival a NASA launch checklist. With help and grants from the Sporting Shooters Association of Australia (SSAA) and Single Action Shooting progress was made straightaway. There was so much to do that little touches and some important bits were finished up the day before we opened, almost six months later.

Bear Paw agonized over the number of shooters. It would be disappointing to get a low number. But too many would mean bottleneck problems. A month out from the big day and we had just a few applications, but at the last minute they started pouring in and we wound up with 117 shooters. Yee-hah! Would the logistics handle it? We had two portable toilets but rented four more. We had a club generator but got a secondary and auxiliaries. A rented cool room made food service possible.

Weather! August in Australia is late winter, which means cold temperatures (well, for here!)—40 degrees Fahrenheit in the morning with a top of 55-60 degrees. And lots of rain, which would mean mud and rust.

By Monday morning, August 22, everything was ready. We now had 12 façades, most full buildings to move into and shoot from multiple positions. These were built by a team led by Double Duelist shooter Sam Balin (SASS #31217 Life Regulator) and included standouts like Classic Cowboy shooter Bambino, 49er Red Morgan, and Lady Wrangler shooter Ruby Morgan. While many folks worked hard, our chief painter was Lady Gunfighter Scarlet Assassin (SASS #104163 Life). Our new dividing walls gave us five shooting bays. Each wall was made from cubic yard concrete blocks weighing 4,000 pounds each. These were expertly assembled by a team led by Classic Cowboy shooter Ranger—also thankfully a skilled crane operator!

The range was decorated with props. The Sheriff's office had wanted posters of the characters in the story. The blacksmith shop had a full sized anvil (carved from wood and indistinguishable from the real thing), and tools glowing in a fake fire, all courtesy of our oldest member, Grand Patron shooter Wrangler Joe. Authentic carriage parts covered the wall, thanks to our carriage restorer, Senior Gunfighter shooter Jesse James.

Jesse restored our sad train façade, painting it bright and adding sandbox, steam dome, new wheels/pistons, and a name sign.

The Mercantile counter held bags of sundry goods, and thanks

WANT MORE SHOOTING?

TAKE IT TO THE NEXT LEVEL.
 You're already a skilled SASS competitor. So what about practical shooting? Practical shooting is the sport that simultaneously measures the ability to shoot rapidly and accurately with a full power handgun, rifle, and/or shotgun in a fun, fair, safe and competitive environment. Three elements – power, accuracy, and speed – form the three sides of the practical shooting triangle. Each match measures a shooter's ability in all three elements.

Get involved in practical shooting by visiting your local USPSA club match. To find one near you, use the "club finder" feature on our website at www.uspsa.org or call the USPSA office at 1-800-995-5646.

to Cowgirl shooter Miss Lilly Rose, even period jars of authentic candy. The Mine sported dynamite, lanterns, and picks. The Cantina had gaming tables with authentic no-number playing cards, chips, and dice, and signs in Spanish enticing customers to purchase unmentionable things (thanks to our second oldest member, Grand Patron shooter Jeremiah). Full-sized cartoon characters from the program were all over. We were (almost) set. Folks probably wouldn't arrive until Wednesday.

But Monday afternoon the first shooters rolled in! While this was a good sign, it was a little scary. By Wednesday afternoon the camping area was packed with RVs and tents, with shooters from almost all seven states. It had begun. The skies were at least bluish.

Thursday was registration with shooter packs handed out: goody bags with a beer coozie printed with our event logo, a drawing calico ammo bag printed with the logo, and the program book. The program featured a cartoon Mayor Hunley (I didn't write the story, a character just happened to look me). Folks got into the spirit and greeted me as "Mr. Mayor." In the afternoon we had a warm up match with more than forty shooters, and an RO course.

Thursday evening Miss Lilly Rose started selling raffle tickets for our prize of twin Uberti Cattleman pistols in .45 Colt. She's persistent and sold our minimum the first night! The pistols were provided by Frontier Cartridge shooter Joe Kidd and the FSC Committee.

Friday, still blue skies and getting warmer, we started with Cowboy Clays and Speed Events. The first BANG! And CLANG! rang out on our new targets, thanks to the welding efforts of Gunfighter shooter Lucky Strike. After lunch (provided by Miss Judy and her chuck wagon team), the event officially opened with intros by SSAA President David Handyside; SASA National Chairman, Territorial Governor Virgil Earp (SASS #4299); FSC President, Classic Cowboy shooter Ebenezer, and our Club Captain, Bear Paw.

The first three stages started the story: You're the new Sheriff of a sleepy frontier town. The Mayor and corrupt cattle baron Iva Beane have struck a deal bringing all the cattle in the area to your town for the train ride back east. Now you've got cashed up cowboys and a bunch of undesirables. You've got to get things under control before your town tears itself apart.

Lots of great BANGS and CLANGS and smiles. Bear Paw's stages were very good! Young Cowboy shooters McSween and brother Tunstall, sister Miss Fortune, and mother Mrs. Mum, laid out a charcoal BBQ Friday night. An event tent housed the guests at long tables, each with a cowboy-themed centerpiece (thanks to Miss Lilly Rose). Entertainment was provided by The Banjo Girl, 17-year-old Taylor Pfeiffer, a professional banjo player and yodeler. She was a smash hit and sold albums at the end of the evening. (www.taylorpfeiffer.com).

Saturday was the big day, six stages. More happy shooters at the end, finding stages fun and not hard, but a little brain power needed. The town continued to be cleaned up as the shooters fought the likes of outlaw Charlie Hart and Bart Kelly.

Folks took advantage of Miss Lilly's Wanted poster photo booth, taking pictures with changeable bad deeds. Three seemingly prim and proper ladies crammed in for a group shot that was anything but proper (manners, and a fear of pain, prevent me from elaborating).

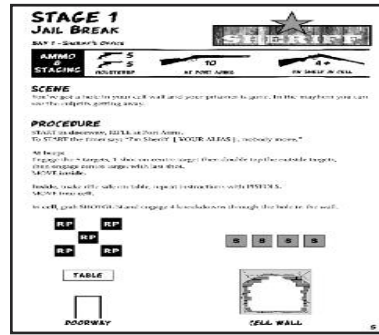

Saturday night's dinner was catered. Hearty roast and veggies. Cowboy shooter Ace McKenzie (SASS #98658 Life) was MC for door prizes. His stylish wardrobe, booming voice, and snappy patter make him a natural host. Our entertainment was Cripple Creek, a three-piece country band, singing a unique blend of bluegrass and alt-country.

Sunday brought the last three stages. Scores were calculated, leaving Master Gunfighter "man-on-man" for the afternoon. The top 16 men and top 8 ladies faced off in pairs on our new Open Range. As "mayor" I had the honor of being the starter pistol for each shoot-off. I'm a black powder man, so there was no doubt about the starter shots. Each shooter competed on a mirrored left/right course of three pistol targets (4-2-4 sweep), three rifle (4-2-4), and four knockdown shotguns. A crossover shotgun target determined the winner. (Shotgun racks and crossover manufactured by Joe Kidd.)

Man-on-man is my favorite part. Even with a Double Duelist against a Cowboy, the outcome is not certain. It's neck-and-neck until the very last. I'd watch this stuff on TV!

Final scores were tallied and the awards ceremony held. Overall Winners were Henry Sharps and Violet Rose. We had five clean shooters, some of them also winning their category!

We had pulled off the Nationals, with shooters happy, awarded, and entertained. Great stages were key, and logistics. Lucky Strike was behind the scenes keeping it moving, and he still shot (and well). Johanna the park caretaker was also behind the scenes every minute.

But the story was important, too. It made the shooters play on another level. For me, the indicator of success is personal. When folks packed up and headed home, I was dragging my own gear across the campground, dressed in civvies but wearing my cavalry boots. A guest shooter was on an intersect course, but there was plenty of room for us to pass. Instead, he stopped and tipped his hat. "Oh no, the mayor should go first." I smiled and took the honor offered. It wasn't that I was the mayor, but that people connected with the story and had fun with it. What a great game and what a great bunch of people cowfolk truly are. 🤠

Central Jersey Rifle and Pistol Club (CJRPC), Jackson, New Jersey, October 2016. This year marked the thirteenth Annual NJ State Championship hosted by the Jackson Hole Gang (JHG). Our best attended so far, 147 registered shooters were slated to visit Purgatory along with 10 vendors selling various wares. Luckily for all, the weather was not to bring us memories of why Purgatory earned the name. From VERY WET and VERY WINDY some years ago our Purgatory this year brought us a wonderful weekend of sun and fun. Our theme for this year was "Come join the Outlaw Gangs at Purgatory" and attracted an unprecedented Four Main Match Sponsors—Cheyenne MTN Outfitters, AC Scott Electric, Michigan Rattler, and our friends at COWS.

All the side matches were well attended as the day wore on and more shooters arrived to warm up on the new and varied targets our gang adds every year. We experienced the advantage of a brand new 300-yard Long Range, opened early by the CJRPC for our Championship. Cowboy Trap was also well attended during the Friday. JHG provided a Cowboy

Mini (three stage) match and a Wild Bunch Mini (three stage) match on Friday, as well as all the pistol, rifle, and shotgun events.

Saturday and Sunday both dawned bright and clear, although once the black powder headed downrange into the sun, “clear” was not the word of the day! The eight posses were challenged by new and exciting scenarios punctuated by our Frontier Cartridge shooters ducking and bobbing to see their targets through the haze. These can be seen in grand pictorial form on Facebook or the “stages” link on our website www.jacksonholegang.com.

Sunshine and black powder in the mornin' based on "The Montana Vigilantes" when they sealed off Virginia City to round up a band of highwaymen, the Plummer Gang, commonly known as "The Innocents."

Swinging targets, soda can throwers (diet soda only), and the Texas Star helped take us through scenarios involving some of the most notorious Gangs in our western history (with names changed to involve the innocent members of our JHG), finishing with a bonus-earning replica of the washer shot in the movie Winchester '73 on Stage 10 to Celebrate the 150th Anniversary of Winchester this year. Considering the “washer” was somewhat larger than the original and the accompanying “hole” correspondingly larger and provided with a bright green back plate target we can certainly say many cowboys and cowgirls were successful in their attempt to hit the center and earn the bonus.

This is the first year—thanks to our Main Match Sponsor AC Scott Electric—all the NJ State winners within each Category received a beautiful robust buckle, and courtesy of all our many sponsors the JHG were able to reward all those who attended with door prizes.

We would like to thank all those who participated, and all our sponsors (not the least being SASS®) for supporting our wonderful sport. 🤠

DISPATCHES FROM CAMP BAYLOR

EMF's Deluxe Alchimista III

By Captain George Baylor, SASS #24287 Patron Life Regulator

Most people in SASS® know Early and Modern Firearms, Inc. was Boyd Davis's creation (General U.S. Grant, SASS #2). After he passed, it was assumed the company would close. That, in fact, was the plan... until Alberto and Alessandro Pietta decided that would be a catastrophe in many ways. To make a long story short, the company was saved.

Debbie Sims is the president and the company is healthy and growing, importing firearms by Pietta, Pedersoli, and Chiappa, and offering home defense and hunting firearms. They feature a custom shop and are the warranty repair for Pietta firearms sold by them, Cabela's, and Bass Pro Shop.

The subject of this test is the top of the Pietta SAA replica line, the Deluxe Alchimista III. This started when Alessandro Pietta, SASS Life #41531, who has some connections at the Pietta factory, had an 1860 Army grip frame fitted to a SAA replica. In addition to being very tall, he has large hands.

This modification was done by gunsmiths of the day. We know this because some of the guns still exist. The Alchimista has a "turned down" hammer. When SASS okayed lowered hammers on SAAs a few years back, manufacturers rushed to put lowered hammers on their guns. Lowered hammers are very popular. They are more comfortable and faster for a lot of people.

Captain Obvious Reports

To answer the inevitable question, "is that octagonal barrel SASS legal," Captain Obvious says yes. Colt didn't produce SAAs with octagonal barrels in the nineteenth century. They last did it with the 1851 Navy. Trivia—they switched to a rounded barrel on the 1860 Army because it was faster and easier to produce and finish.

Octagonal barrels have been a custom gunsmith option for several years. They add weight, which tamps

ROCK SOLID

Historically, turret presses have been anything but rock solid. The T-7, however, establishes a new standard that will exceed your expectations. Modern CNC machinery has allowed us to design and build the press you've been waiting for – a seven station turret with the strength, power, and positioning accuracy of our single station presses. Owners say it's like having seven presses on their bench all at once. When you rotate the turret of a T-7, you will feel it snap into position with authority. Its powerful compound linkage, huge frame opening, and 3.8" of ram stroke will accommodate cartridges from the 380 Auto (ACP) up to the largest Magnums including the 338 Lapua.

muzzle flip, and they look good. The octagonal barrel also makes a great canvas for engraving.

The trigger is wide and set back, leaving more room for big fingers. A wider trigger also spreads out contact area, making the trigger feel lighter.

The “Alchimista” III is available in Standard and Deluxe versions in .357 Magnum and .45 Colt. The Standard version maintains the tradition of the casehardened frame, blued cylinder, and EMF’s signature brass back strap while adding a distinctive Octagonal Blued Barrel.

The Deluxe “Alchimista” III retains the physical configuration of the Standard version, but the frame is “old silver,” and the barrel is blue. Also, most of the surface is beautifully engraved. The result is a strikingly beautiful revolver.

Laser Engraving

The engraving is done with a laser—on the production line at the factory. Hand engraving of this quality and coverage would cost considerably more than the complete gun does, and it would be worth it. Hand engraving requires artistry and hours and hours of careful work. Until recently, laser engraving just didn’t look like hand engraving. It wasn’t deep enough, and it seemed to lack character. This gun, on the other hand, looks like a master engraver was showing off the ability to do all kinds of work from scroll to checkerboards. The fancy screw-heads become focal points for the engraving around them. Nearly every surface has been engraved. The grip frame has a shiny leaf pattern on a matted background. Even the small space on the sides of the grip frame has been engraved.

This is a fancy engraved pistol that you can shoot in matches and not have a heart attack when you note holster wear. It just adds character. Still, with all of this list price is $710. If you haven’t bought an SAA replica in 10 years or so, that’s just a few dollars more (to use an old west term) than standard guns go for these days. Plainer Alchimista I revolvers start at $590.

How does it shoot?

som's available inserts. They could make one, of course. Instead I just took the gun to Founders Ranch and shot at the steel targets at the Long Hunter Saloon. I shot teeny-tiny groups until they started getting ragged because of fatigue. The groups were at point of aim and about as small as I can do with any gun with "stock" sights.

Trigger pull, after I'd fired a couple of boxes of Bone Orchard 125-grain LTC ammunition (the "official" ammunition for my gun tests, insuring consistency) was 3-1/2 pounds. This will work for most SASS shooters. I asked Jack Diamond, the gunsmith who handled the transfers, what it would take to lighten it. He gave a technical description of the hammer angle being positive and just needed to be made neutral. He considers this to be an easy, basic SAA tuning feature. The point is you can easily get it made lighter. After shooting it 100 rounds or so, I decided if I were shooting a pair of these in competition I would probably leave the action alone. The ones who can shoot 10 second stages will have their own gunsmiths to tune the trigger to their talents. Cocking pressure was light. Shooting it was easy. I would only add two things if I were going to shoot this in matches. First, a wide brass front sight, which would be solved with a Sure Hit front Sight from Slick McClade; second, a wider rear notch, which could easily be accomplished by a good gunsmith. Mine are all 0.140-inch. Shotgun Boogie is advertising four millimeter rear sights, (0.157"). The eye will self-center, and you get a lot of light on the sides of the front sight. My eyes are terrible, something a lot of SASS shooters experience after the warranty expires on our eyes.

Mentioning these options is not a criticism. Only a portion of shooters would want them. This is a sport where we race with guns, and tuning them to taste is part of it.

Conclusion

The Deluxe Alchimista III I tested has excellent fit and finish, beautiful grips, and accuracy. The engraving is spectacular. With all that the price is pretty spectacular, too. ## The Execution of William Kemmler

By Big Dave, SASS #55632

Big Dave, SASS #55632

An artist's rendering of Kemmler's execution.

At 6:00 a.m. on August 6, 1890, William Kemmler became the first person to die in the electric chair. He had been convicted of murdering his girlfriend, Tillie Ziegler, with a hatchet. The murder and trial occurred in the state of New York during a period when electricity was the new cutting edge of technology. As it so happened, New York had been casting about for a more “humane” form of execution than hanging. William Kemmler was supposed to be executed in a manner that guaranteed instantaneous death. Unfortunately for those who witnessed the execution and especially for Kemmler himself, there were some glitches in the operation.

The last hanging in New York hadn't gone well. Roxalana Druse, who had killed her husband with an axe after shooting him with a .22 revolver, had been sentenced to death in 1885. After the appeals ran out, Druse was executed in 1887. She was attached by a noose to a newfangled device that was supposed to lift her off the floor with a counterweight instead of employing the traditional trapdoor. It was intended to be more efficient, but the device didn't work well in practice. Roxalana Druse's neck wasn't broken and it took her several minutes to die. After that botch job, the officials in New York began to look for something better.

Firing squads are noisy and messy. They don't always guarantee an instant death anyway. The guillotine is more or less instantaneous, but it's messy and well, too French. Why not use a modern marvel like electricity? A quick zap and it's all over—no mess and no kicking about. Experiments had been conducted using animals and electrocution had produced the desired results.

William Kemmler's execution by the electric chair came about partly because of a rivalry between George Westinghouse and Thomas Edison. Westinghouse was a proponent of alternating current (AC) and Edison favored direct current (DC). Edison wanted to prove that AC was unsafe and began electrocuting dogs and other animals to edge Westinghouse out of the competition for America's electrical utilities. It was a strange and cruel backdrop for the story. All Edison managed to do was to prove if you hooked a living thing up to a device that deliberately sent thousands of volts of AC current into it, the living thing would soon be dead. Westinghouse, to his credit, refrained from deliberately electrocuting critters and was disgusted when electricity was used to execute a human being.

A number of dog pounds in New York State began to use electricity to euthanize unwanted animals, but the wheels were turning in the direction of capital punishment, especially after the hanging of the unfortunate Roxalana Druse. As it turned out, a professor of dentistry had heard the story of a drunk who had been instantly killed after touching a live electrical wire. The professor, Alfred Southwick, was a dentist who crusaded against pain. Since Southwick was accustomed to working on people in chairs, he put two and two together invented the electric chair as his gift to humanity and progress. (As I write this, I'm laughing uneasily—partly because the guillotine was also invented by a doctor.)

The stage was set for convicted murderer William Kemmler to become the first person to be executed electrically. There was the widespread use of a new power source and the invention of a new "humanitarian" gadget, and public outrage against hanging. The great minds in New York State had a guinea pig for the concept of electrocution as a form of capital punishment. The electric chair seemed to be foolproof and painless.

Kemmler's lawyer appealed the sentence on the grounds an untested device like the electric chair violated his eighth amendment rights. The appeal went as high as the Supreme Court, but the sentence was upheld. The electric chair was not classified as a "cruel and unusual" form of punishment. The Supreme Court considered it to be a modern form of capital punishment with the convict's best interests in mind. In retrospect, it's easy to understand the decision, given the fact the court had been assured all

Unfortunately, what happened when Kemmler was executed was similar to what happens when you install some new product in your firearm without testing it yourself or without reading firsthand accounts of the new gadget's performance. It seems the voltage required to lethally electrocute a dog or a horse is not the same for a human. Furthermore, lethal voltage can vary from person to person. Then there were other circumstances that hadn't been foreseen. The authorities in New York might have done better to employ an old fashioned hangman.

William Kemmler calmly sat down in the electric chair on August 6, 1890 at a little before 6:00 a.m. He was wearing a suit for the occasion. You'd have thought he was going to have his picture taken except he was strapped into the chair by leather restraints around the arms, waist and legs. Kemmler was respectful, the guards were respectful, the witnesses were respectful, and it seemed as though something dignified was going to happen. Kemmler's last words, as they fitted the wooden cap to his head with the metal plate, electrode, and sponge in its top, were something to the effect he was going to a "good place." They'd zapped a horse the day before, with instantaneous results, so nobody expected any problems.

The signal was given and the executioner flipped the switch. Accounts vary about the actual voltage used, but it was apparently not enough. Kemmler went rigid and convulsed, but after seventeen seconds when the electricity was turned off, witnesses saw his chest heaving. It took a while for the generator to power up, but the second attempt went on for about a minute. Witnesses reported the smell of burning meat and "odd crackling sounds." The second attempt was successful and Kemmler was pronounced dead.

The first execution by electric chair gets mixed reviews. Kemmler suffered less than Roxalana Druse and however many other people who died as the result of poorly executed hangings. However, Kemmler's death wasn't very enviable. The inventor of the electric chair, Alfred Southwick, saw Kemmler's execution as the herald of a new age of "progress" despite the imperfections of the performance. George Westinghouse, a proponent of electricity for other uses, was horrified. His comment was it would have been more humane to have executed Kemmler "with an axe."

At first, Thomas Edison was pleased with the results of Kemmler's execution. Since AC current was utilized in the electric chair, it seemed to "prove" that AC current was more deadly and dangerous than the DC current Edison favored. Nevertheless, it is Westinghouse's AC current that is used in our homes today and Edison seems to have lost this particular battle.

The electric chair remained in use for a long time, given the fact it was a far cry from foolproof. It should be mentioned that no form of execution is guaranteed to be painless and the best protection against a botched execution is to refrain from committing a capital crime. You'd better employ the best legal representation available if you do. If you didn't commit the crime and happen to get executed anyway, then that's another issue entirely. I guess you'd better hope you're going to a "good place." Executioners are well trained and they don't hook you up to an untested device.

A Shocking Tale (The Execution of William Kemmler)

There's a weird postscript to the story. In 1903, at Coney Island, Topsy the elephant was electrocuted. She had killed a spectator at a circus event and committed some other violent actions. Although the elephant had been mistreated, nobody could think of an alternative to putting her down. Topsy's owners were going to hang her and charge admission to the event, but you can imagine the problems incurred by hanging an elephant, so they decided to electrocute her instead. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals got wind of the plan and protested, so the event was downsized to include only reporters and invited guests. In order to ensure Topsy's swift demise, she was to be fed poison, strangled with an elaborate and unthinkable device, and finally electrocuted for good measure. A film called Electrocuting an Elephant was made with still another new-fangled device—the motion picture film camera. The good news is Topsy died more quickly than Edward Kemmler. The bad news is the film is repulsive and disturbing and you should do yourself a favor and avoid watching it.

I'm not sure what lesson, if any, can be gleaned from this story. It's a shocking demonstration of the law of unintended consequences. Electricity was supposed to make life easier for all people. In the wake of a competition for the dominant form of electrical current, electricity became part of the criminal justice system. Unfortunately, it hadn't been fully tested before it was employed. Then, in spite of the fact the first execution by electric chair had gone off horribly, more executions followed. The late nineteenth century was a period of extreme optimism with the motto, "If at first you don't succeed, try and try again." In this case, that motto was put to use in a questionable manner.

LITTLE KNOWN FAMOUS PEOPLE

- Way Out West -

By Joe Fasthorse, SASS #48769

Evett Dumas Nix was born in Kentucky on September 19, 1861. His uncle was a county sheriff and his father a deputy sheriff. In 1885 he married his childhood sweetheart, Ellen Felts. Nix went to Guthrie, Oklahoma as a businessman, during the Land Rush of 1891.

He had many influential friends, including rancher Oscar Halsell, who at that time employed Bill Doolin and members of the Doolin/Dalton Gang. Evett was appointed to the position of US Marshal in 1893 at age 32, the youngest to hold that position at the time. He took over during "Hanging Judge" Isaac Parker's tenure, when the Doolin/Dalton Gang was robbing banks and trains in Oklahoma, Texas, and Arkansas. The renegades had a safe haven in Ingalls, Oklahoma and Marshal Nix's first priority was to organize a contingent to take out the outlaws in. Nix and Deputy Marshal John Hixon led a posse of fourteen Marshals to attack the gang. In the Battle of Ingalls, Deputy Marshals Hueston, Speed, and Shadley were killed. Outlaws Bittercreek Newcomb, Charley Pierce, and Dynamite Dan Clifton were wounded but escaped. Arkansas Tom Jones was captured. Nix next organized an elite group of lawmen, which included Heck Thomas, Bill Tilghman and Chris Madsen, to bring down the Doolin/Dalton Gang. By 1898 the entire band of bandits, except Arkansas Tom Jones who was still in jail, had been killed or brought to justice. After Arkansas Tom was released from prison, he returned to his outlaw ways and was killed by lawmen in 1924. Critics falsely accused Nix of misusing funds and he was dismissed from his position in 1896. It is believed he merely used the fee system for payment of Deputy Marshals and was not guilty of the mismanagement charge. Following his dismissal he returned to Guthrie and resumed his life as a businessman. In 1929 he co-authored a book titled Oklahombres, detailing the work that wiped out the Doolin/Dalton and the Jennings Gangs. Evett Dumas Nix died on February 6, 1946. J

Chancey Lady, SASS #25650

By Chance Ramsey, SASS #18962 Life

Thionotosassa, FL. It is with heavy heart I report Cindy Schlaudraff (Chancey Lady) lost her battle with cancer August 5, 2016.

She loved her SASS Family and shooting, but most of all she loved meeting people. It made no difference to her if you were a top shooter or just starting out, you were always greeted with a smile, a hug, and a warm Howdy.

She became a member of SASS in 2000 and was a seven-time Florida State Champion in Ladies Senior, Ladies Silver Senior, and Grande Dame. She will be sorely missed by her husband of 53 years Chance Ramsey, daughter Dynamite Deed, son Last Chance Kid, daughter-in-law Deanna, and the apple of her eye, granddaughter Samantha.

Thank you SASS for all the love and support during and after this broken trail. 🐾

Dollar Bill, SASS #57784

April 5 1941 – March 29 2016

By Jim Miller, SASS #74828 and Texas Tiger, SASS #74829

If you are lucky, there are some rare moments in your life when you meet someone who not only enters your life, but also becomes a true friend. Jim Miller, AKA Dollar Bill was such a man. As a mark of that friendship, if you needed help it was not a case of, "I'll check my diary." It was, "I'm heading for the truck."

We first became aware of his personality when sitting around the campfire after a day of shooting the New Mexico state match in Las Cruces. The subject was leatherwork and someone asked what neat's-foot oil was. Being a competent leather worker, Dollar Bill held us all spell bound with the tale of a little deer like animal that was difficult to catch but when you did if you held them tight and squeezed their feet you could get some drops of oil to work into your leather! This worked until we could not hold our laughter any longer.

Dollar Bill was a stalwart member of the Rio Grande Renegades and as such was known as the Hayes City (home of the RGR) Blacksmith. Under his guidance and leadership, Hayes City has grown considerably and it was always a pleasure to work with him in constructing buildings and props. When taking a break from construction, Dollar Bill would entertain us with tales of his adventures in the Border Patrol and US Customs Service. Ones like the night a silent border patrol came to an abrupt end after he shot a rattlesnake that had a firm grip on the toe of his boot!

DB was also an avid aviator who had worked hard as a youngster to learn to fly. His time with the US Customs Service gave him the opportunity to fly all types of aircraft. With the RGR range next to the double eagle airport, you would often see him looking skyward as planes flew over. We will miss not being told what sort of aircraft it was.

His last two years were a constant fight against the cancer that eventually took him but it was with a cowboy's dogged determination that he kept pulling that trigger right up to the end. It was a privilege to have known him and an honor to have been able to call him a friend. 🐾

Political

Impelled to Separation

By Colonel Dan, SASS #24025 Life

When in the Course of human Events, it becomes necessary for one People to dissolve the Political Bands which have connected them with another...they should declare the causes which impel them to Separation.” ~ Declaration of Independence ~

These words of Thomas Jefferson ushered America onto a unique frontier in man’s search for freedom. Similar concerns face the patriots of today regarding freedom, resolve, separation, and the future that faced the patriots of yesterday. We know what happened in 1776 and beyond, but what will happen in 2017 and beyond now that the extremely divisive 2016 election is behind us? Regardless of who won, this election served only to widen and intensify the ever-growing wedge between two radically divergent philosophies.

Jefferson’s words were born of unalienable truths and led to a concept I call colonial traditionalism. The actions, however, of our modern American government clearly reflect a philosophy revealing a dangerous counter-concept that I see as a mix of socialism, fascism and communism.

An ever growing and powerful central government is diametrically opposed and radically counter to the foundation of America—the preeminence and sanctity of individual freedom. It’s not only a statement descriptive of a philosophy that fears a free people but at the same time is very representative of many anti-constitutional attitudes in America today. It also clearly shows we are on sharply diverging paths and losing the common ground we may have shared in previous generations—especially and intentionally driven by the likes of Obama, the Clintons, and others of like mind. While many remain faithful to colonial traditionalism, others are falling for and spreading the deception embodied by this form of modern “liberalism” that is a far cry from Jeffersonian liberalism.

I’m seeing more and more examples of less and less common ground among Americans and it concerns me greatly. There’s a political/cultural schism that is widening into an irreversible chasm as we lose our national identity and align ourselves with a variety of splinter groups, cultures and philosophies.

When many of us were kids, Americans seemed to accept and share a sense of traditional values much more so than they do today. We seemed to have been more aware of what the American culture was and could more easily describe it or at least know it when we saw it and identify ourselves with it. God and guns were not looked upon as political leprosy, the founding fathers were not vilified as hypocritical slave holders deserving of no respect, and the constitution was revered as the foundation of our freedom rather than a challenge for tyrants to circumvent and destroy... and we were just Americans, no constant use of hyphenations that I remember. Today we seem to have lost that melting pot look and are now more like a mosaic of sub-cultures that feel a need for a hyphenated identity. And if you notice the word American in the hyphenation always comes second.

We’re losing our sense of national unity that was America’s unifying force or national glue that came from sharing a set of traditional cultural values. The glue that keeps any country unified boils down to a very few important ingredients... a common language, secure borders, a shared set of traditional cultural values upon which the country was originally based, and a sense of identity with that culture that sets its people apart from the rest of the world. In order for any group of people to remain united, they must share a common set of values they incorporate into their lives as their own and pass along to their children. History has shown when those characteristics are lost, the country soon comes morally unglued.

It seems to me we are now coming unglued and polarizing into two major camps whose philosophies will never reach consensus because their fundamental values are mutually exclusive. Can such divergent philosophies ever coexist in one country and under one government? The differences between the two philosophies are stark and becoming more entrenched as attitudes harden. The most basic differences are, traditionalists believe in self-reliance, self-determination, and personal freedom, while “modern progressives” believe in government reliance, government control, and very limited personal freedom (for the masses).

Reviewing some concepts of the opposing philosophies, traditionalists believe in the former while progressives believe in the latter: individual freedom vs. societal control; small government vs. big government; independence vs. dependence; self-reliance and personal responsibility vs. government reliance and “shared” responsibility; freedom of religion vs. freedom from religion; equal opportunity vs. equal outcome; private property vs. public property; national sovereignty vs. world government; states rights vs. federal rights; the money you earn is yours vs. the money you earn is ours; truth counts vs. lies don’t matter; character matters vs. image is everything; “shall not be infringed” pertains to the right to keep and bear arms vs. it pertains to political ambition.

This country is becoming so divided in basic values and polarized in philosophy, I can see no clear path to a reconciliation of these two opposing camps. Continued coexistence would require not compromise but submission because this confrontation involves diametrically opposed principles... and I don’t cotton to compromising principles. As I’ve said, compromise of principle is no compromise—its surrender and traditionalists are unwilling to surrender their principles.

~ Thomas Jefferson ~

The on-going attack on the Constitution we’ve witnessed is clearly an attack on the country and its people because it seeks to obliterate many of those principles and goes against the very foundation upon which we have built our lives. I see dark clouds on America’s horizon regarding unification vs. separation and it shouldn’t surprise anyone. We faced similar trouble in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, so why should the twenty-first be much different.

I believe those causes that impel separation to which Jefferson referred are being unmistakably declared every day by these opposing ideological camps and separation is becoming more of a possibility than it has been in 160 years. How this will play out is still TBD, but I fear America may once again be on the verge. Therefore, the message I’d send all socialists, communists and fascists is this:

“If those who choose to live in a country wherein the state is dominant over the individual and government control replaces individual freedom, that’s your choice and I will respect your right to that choice, but don’t try to fit me into that mold nor force that same choice on me. As I respect your right to choose your way, I demand you accord those of us who choose otherwise the same respect in our right to live a life of freedom bestowed by God and guaranteed by our Constitution.

“I refuse to accept the philosophy you represent, that is leading America to totalitarianism. While I refuse to live under a system based on government domination, I’ll respect the choice of those who willingly surrender their liberties in search of security. In my mind however, such a life goes against our Creator’s vision for mankind and the principles upon which America was founded, that recognize our right to live free. I choose to follow the Founders’ vision, I believe was divinely inspired and not your vision, only despots could have authored.

“Let there then be no misunderstanding, I will never surrender the rights bestowed on me by God which the Constitution of our forefathers forbids government to negate—the Constitution still legally governs this land despite the left’s best efforts to undermine it and I refuse to apologize for my beliefs, which have their roots firmly based on a set of values your philosophy does not accept.

“Let us then go our separate ways and do so peacefully, as I see no possible reconciliation of two such divergent and mutually exclusive philosophies. If you persist in refusing to recognize our right to choose and continue to harbor thoughts of coercion through ever increasing levels of government regulation regarding the life people are to lead in America, then many of us will see no alternative but to impel separation.

“People who revere the divine truth of freedom, choosing the traditional ways over the deceitful lies of tyranny, will not allow themselves to be dominated by any tyrant. Their resolve will not waiver in the belief the formula to preserve traditional America will never succeed unless an honest consideration of the truth is a foundational element of the equation. Traditionalists will continue to soldier on the path pioneered by their forefathers and choose to live as they chose—free!”

THE Cowboy CHRONICLE

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

The Cowboy Chronicle welcomes and encourages submissions of articles and match reports from any and all readers.

Please submit articles in MS Word or something compatible.

Open Office and Apple Pages (saved as MS Word) are also fine. A count of 800-1500 words for the printed editions is a good target to shoot for, but shorter pieces are also fine, and we can accommodate larger reports in our virtual-only issues if the material warrants it. We may choose to break very lengthy articles up into two or more parts to run in consecutive issues, or heavily edit them, however.

Please do not embed your photos in the Word document.

They can be extracted for use in the The Cowboy Chronicle, but it can be a chore to do that. Instead, send your photos separately, in one or more emails, as attachments. Three to six photos per email usually works best. It's best to send JPEGs, but other formats are acceptable, and it's best to keep them at about 300 dpi and 3000 pixels (10 inches) on the short side. That will allow us plenty of leeway when it comes to cropping and adjusting them for publication, but in any case try to use photos that are at least 1000 pixels on the short side. If you're unsure of the size of your pictures, or how to size them, send what you have and we'll adjust them.

Usually, six photos are sufficient for an article, especially for the printed version, but we will consider using more for a "big" event, if provided.

The digital editions can accommodate more images, as well. Photos need not have captions, but captions always make photos more interesting. Ideally, the caption would consist of one or two sentences that say something about the picture that is not obvious and/or is not implicit in the body of the article. "Sam making smoke" is a title but not a caption. "Sam, SASS #XXXXX, shooting his first black powder match; after much deliberation, he decided to give it a try and now he's hooked" is much better. A caption may also serve to let everyone know why the picture is worthy of being published in an international newspaper.

For digital editions, short video clips may also be included.

MPEGs, AVIs, WAVs, etc., may all be embedded in Chronicle pages, with MPEGs (mp4) preferable. A better option would be to post your video to YouTube and then provide us with the YouTube link. Those will be viewable provided the reader is connected to the Internet.

Please use editor@sassnet.com for all article submissions.
